The IU volleyball coaches and players rushed the court in celebration after a dramatic serve by a Tennessee freshman hit out of bounds.

The IU volleyball team closed it out again in the NCAA tournament, advancing IU to the Sweet 16 for the first time in school history.

The Hoosiers (23-11) won two matches this weekend against Miami (Fla.) and No. 11 seed Tennessee, both in five sets.

"I love this team and how they refuse to quit," IU coach Sherry Dunbar said.

The Hoosiers were the third team in the tournament to advance after Saturday's win against the Lady Volunteers gave them their fifth victory against a top-25 team this season.

"I think it's just that mentality that the game is on the line and we are playing to make the Sweet 16," junior libero Caitlin Cox said.

IU rallied back from a 10-8 deficit in the fifth set to claim match point and won when Tennessee setter Kylann

NEXT GAME

IU vs. USC

WHEN Friday, schedule TBA

WHERE UD Arena, Dayton, Ohio

If the Hoosiers win, they will play again on Saturday.

KEYS FOR HOOSIERS

Senior middle blocker Ashley Benson and sophomore outside hitter Jordan Haverly will need to get most of the kills. Serving and passing are the controllables that the Hoosiers need to maintain (i.e. bad passes and service errors need to be limited). The back row defense cannot give USC big holes to hit into.

KEYS FOR TROJANS

USC must rely on junior outside hitter and All-American Alex Jupiter, who leads the team with 488 kills. The Trojans will have to utilize their junior setter Kendall Bateman, who leads the Pac-10 in assists.

PREDICTION

USC wins in five sets. If this game were in Bloomington, the Hoosiers would have a better chance of winning. But on the road and against a team with a surplus of talent, the Trojans will find a way to win.

Sororities rush new members at 19 Party

Fraternities show support in process

"Special" buses idled along North Jordan Avenue and Third Street, while fraternity brothers stood in front of their houses entertaining those who walked past.

Women lined up outside the fraternities' neighbors, shivering in the bitter cold. Other women took their places behind each of the sorority house's door, ready to greet the girls who could become the newest pledge classes.

19 Party — the process of potential new members visiting all sorority chapters in two days — is only the first round of a month-long process.

But the weekend spread further than in the homes of sororities, with fraternities getting involved as well.

"These women have one weekend of stress, and we have more than that (spread out)," said freshman Sam Incardona, a member of Kappa Sigma.

To show his support for the sororities, Incardona spent his weekend on the front lawn of the fraternity passing out hot chocolate to Rho Gammas and the girls rushing.

On Sunday, many freshmen spent their break from the recruitment process catching up on sleep, grabbing a bite to eat or studying for the week ahead.

Freshman Paulina Minite said she emerged from her afternoon break refreshed. Minite said she overcame all her initial nerves about the weekend and was enjoying the process more.

Facebook redesigns

Users can now switch to the redesigned Facebook profile page or wait for the design to be automatic for all users within a few weeks. The design makes photos more prominent with a row of most recent photos on the profile. Above the photos will be personal information such as job, hometown, relationship status and a new "sports" category to list favorite sports, teams and athletes.

Harry Potter no longer No. 1

"Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 1" lost its top box office spot to "Tangled" for the first time since the movie's Nov. 19 release.
